The Hooghly Pilots.

Pilots for the Hooghly do not cruise much to pick tip vessels, they have a regular station near a lightship, and if it is thick weather it is nice work to fall in with them just right. Their vessels have always been full rigged brigs manned by heavy Lasoni crews, and are about the last thing affoat to tell of the days of the old East India Company. Their signal is a white flag with a red cross, and they are supposed to brave all corts of weather, maneuver through a cyclone if necessary. Soon we had the Lastern hightship in sight, and in an hour s time (nine a. m.) were close to the brig. She hove to, launched a heavy surf or lifeboat in fine style, and in it sat eight Bengal sailors with their cars a peak, waiting the movements of the pilot. In the meantime we had our mainsails brailed op and ran slowly down by the brig. The turbaned Lascars looked stringely through their rig-ging and over their high bulwarks at us and the brass-bottoned pilots and officers took a searching look at the Conception as she forged slowly ahead. We hauld sharp around under her lea. laid the main and crossjack yards to the mast and there waited with all hands at the braces ready to fill away in the boat with several others in the stern sheets coming for us. They had so much luggige that the chief officer sang out from the forecastle deck "I her bright red, pure copper flashing in the Bengal sun, the beat shooting by the Bengal sun, the boat snooting by our stein, the cars of eight trained carsmen keeping perfect time. My heart took a great leap of joy but I gulped it down and hastened to the gangway to meet my long wished for and welcome visitors. "Stand by your braces, now, men" I said, as the boat the said of the s touched the side. A time, intelli-gent bronzed faced veteran sailor tropped over the rail with "you me the (apt un, I suppose?" "Yes, and you are the pilot, I presume?" 'I am," he said, ther showing the badge of his office, the roval crown and anchor "And you the royal crown and anchor "And you are welcome to the Hooghly, are ""Welcome on board the Conception, my name is — " "And mine, ar, is Lidson 'A nautical glance aloft revaled the Stars and Stripes, so rarely seen now, and he said, "American, are A fine ship, sir. We can always tell them How much water do you draw? Twenty-two foct, did you say? That is, in sait water, you will draw twenty-two six in the river, fresh water. twenty-two six in the river, fresh water, ou know, makes a difference eager sailors were at the braces listen-ing waiting for their orders. "Yes, you may till away, but we shan't get farther than 5 tugor to-night. Put your wheel up there and keep her for that buoy Let me introduce you to a brother pilot, who wishes to get to town, he has a ship there ready for sea." In the mean-time a cart-load of dunnage (bacgage) had been hauled up in charge of the pilot a servant, a Mohammedan, who al-ways accompanies his master. Ho was ors who had never bosn east of the Cipa. He had a dark visage, jet black tyes, hair and beard. He wore a small, wasted tunic, had bere legs, with sandals on his feet. The pilot spoke to him in Bengalees, and called him Abdal. "I us is my hoy," he said to me, "who will look after my luggage, and please let him as at your stoward to are near a sainging cot bed, a beg, a trunk of box, for each pilot, and these there was hox, for each pilot, and these these was an assistant pilot, called a "leademen," a voung amuteur English sailor, whose duty it was to heave the lead and thereby gran a thorough knowledge of the boundings, preparatory to taking up the hofession of a pilot. No common pallor is trusted with the lead gring up the Hooghly, but a man is sent into the chains to help him (the leademan) hand the line in on account of the exhaust no beat. lie question of a man's right to wear ins lit in court—or rather of the court's right to make him remove it—is in a fur way to be tested. In a Justics Court on Staten Island a few days since a spectator was commanded by an offi cui to remove his bat. He refused to obey the order, alleging that he was health required him to wear his hat so not to avoid draughts of air upon his un-protected scalp. He was arrested, however and fined for contempt, and pon tetusing to pay the fine he was committed to prison for five days. He threatened to bring sult for damages and try the question of the Justico's

If he does it will be an interesting It he does, it will be an interesting to it. Courts do universally most on amcovered heads, and always have in this country except in the earliest days and in the case of Quakers, whose religi in scraples would not permit them to remove then hats. But have they any acal right to insist? Have they any more right to compel a man to remov I is hit thin to demand the removal of His cont or his boots? The notion of honor or dishonor, respect or disrespect, in wearing or not wearing the hat is purely witheral. It has no foundstion in the principle of things. If it had it would be a contempt of court for ladies to appear with covered heads, as they invariably do even in the witness

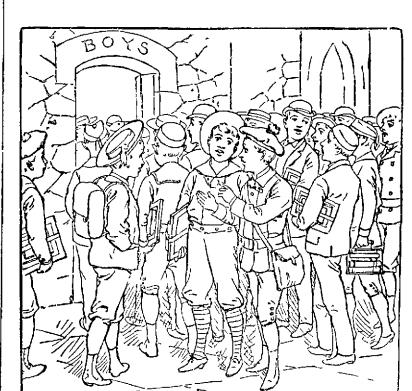

It would probably shock the judiciary of the country almost off the bench if it were decided that the American collect ander the Declaration of Independence and the "ægis of liberty"—whatever that may be—has a right to wear his hat and where he pleases - Detroit Diee Press

COL. CARR'S SPEECH. The gentleman was received with flattering applause as he stepped forward after the intro-duction by President Mos-er. He had been sp. Pling continuously for many weeks and was a little hoarse, but he soon was able to make all in the vast audience of 2,000 people rear birrand commanded their attention. The address was a fair discussion of live potitical were nied up thick and fast and thoroughly clinched. We can give on'y a synopsis of the splendld effort. He said: "We are fond of the Republican party and its history; we love (ferman for young people. Everybody to talk about it. But we can talk of somewho feels an interest in learning the lan-thing clso you can speak of the necessities thing clso סיק can speak of the necessities which brought it into existence. The American sentiment was developed by the gallant fight in the senate of Stephon A. Douglas for northern and southern possessions, it is alive to-day, and we must be slive to our commer west and in South America. We have had a great war, a great struggle; and now the time has come again to give expression to American industrial interests. The American people have said in their convention that the man t lead in this important matter is James G. they said that they must have another great Logan. (Loud cheers.) As I stand here tothe Republican party in 1856. It says the tariff is not for reveaus only, but for protection of American laor. The avaricious policy of England and her free trade system which reduced the common people to a condition little better than slavery, was fully set forth with pointed illustrations. At E'gin, the other day, I saw l.un leeds of operatives going home from the watch factory, plainly and neatly dressed, all charting pleasantly together and seemingly going home from a festival. I asked why those 3.000 men and young women were so happy, and I was told that they were paid well. They get from $1.30 to $1.50 a day for work, while operatives in Switzerland for doing the same work get but 30, 40 and 50 cents a day. We have a tariff on the works of watches, and we pay a ollar a day more in America than they do in Switzerland. The tariff has given America the [Prolonged cheers and shouts.] I remember him away back whon he stood by Lincoln, who teld han to "always keep close to the peop.a." ) our peoper know that he has done so, and Oglesby's taults stand out in the broad sundight as glorious as compared with the virtues of limitson. (Loud applates) it was during the war that the Chicago Tellane published a column obstumy of Gen. Oglesby when he fell from his house at Counth, shot and thought to be nortally wounded, but he recovered and is with us today in all the vigor of a ripe manhood—gailant and brave. Pick Oglesby! When Carter Hart son and such as he are dead and retting in their graves, forgetten forever, the people of Halme's will be searching for marble white enough and browze pure enough to erect a magnificent monament to commemorate the patroctism and housely of Richard J. Oglesby. (Prolonged cheering). In conclusion the chaquent speaker alled upon the voters to stand by the Hopublican party, not for others, but for principles and American prosperity. The South is said, What makes Really. It's the same old spirit of realisance and rebellion. Don't be decreated by the ery of a change, for it means a catage of civilization. The tabernacle last night was filled rom the stage to the doors by an enthusiastic Republican crowd of ladies and centlemen, to hear the splendid speech by Col. Clark E. Carr. of Galesburg, whose tribute to the Germans, Dick Oglesby and American institutions, was the most eloquent and clinching effort ever spoken The members of the different Republi the great from trade and lively competition at can clubs made a parade on the streets, headed by the G. Ex-Gov, Palmer spoke here the other day. He makes a great cry about hard times. It is false. Times are good, much better than under democratic rule. The protective tariff has made good times in America. Thirty years ago under free trade rullroad from was sold here at $140 to $160 per ton. The protective tariff established from works in America, stimulated competition at home, and to-day a ton of iron can be had for $27. England formerly controlled the prices, but the tarill cheapened ron at once and built up the industry in America. The tariff protects our home factories and everything is changer new than pre-vious to 1860. In 1861 the bankers required a perchant to go security for a farmer when he wanted money. Now the mercharts must get farmors to go their security at banks before they can get money. Factories make prosper us towns, and where there are fuctories farming lands about them are worth 15 to 25 per ent more than at points where there are no factories, and besides the tariff makes goods cheaper. Remember that.

Carter Harrison actually imagines that he is running against Dick Oglesby, [Laughter and cheers.] He was here the ether day. He is one of those fellows who is going to make the laborer rich and impoverish the employer, he would starve the cow and fatton the calf. Oh would starte the cow and ration tho cail. On, yos; he is going to do great things. Harrison imagines that he is going to enpure the foreign vote. Is her Haven't you been stirred by German poetry and thrilled by their knowledge. Reflect that the German universities are the formatin head of our leatning of the present. Think of the great Frederick and Wilhelm and Von Moltke, and their splendid triumphs for Germany? Think of grand old German, and what her gallant sens have done for the United States—the brave Slegal and the gallant Osterhaus, and thousands of other patriotic Germans. The Germans wrested Missouri from the lebe. S. (Applause). Think of Harrison going about this state and talking to the Germans as be does, and talking to them only about Lacker negra! It is an insult to every German in the state, and I believe herore this campagen is over that they will tenthe wolf's skin from Harrison's body and expose him in his true light. offered to the public While its cleansing capacity is 8 times greater than any soap made from alkani and grease, it contains nothing that would injure the most delicate skin on the contrary, it will cure chapped hands, pluples sunburn and all diseases of the skin Attor washing with this coap a short time the skin becomes smooth and soft, rendering the complexion clear and beautiful. It will be complexion clear and beautiful. It will be count valuable as a hair wash, in renorating and preventing dandruff. Its great pullivand freedom from mineral and animal substances makes it the most desirable article for the infant bath that can be procured. It is the cheapest soap you can buy, because it will go farther and give better satisfaction than any other. Dont fail to give it a trial.
